

Let's face it, in today's world, there's only one way to be prepared. You simply have to stay ahead. For us, that means anticipating where the world is going as the pace of global development heats up. Our leadership style is to recognize opportunities and pursue them long before they emerge as trends or markets. That takes a certain kind of person; all-in, passionately engaged and ready to act. If that sounds like you, we know you'll like us. This is about shaping history and how far you'll take these opportunities to do your life's best work.SM

A vision that matches to the emerging world.

The way we see it, globalization is evolving to the point where emerging markets are essential markets. To grow in the future, business leaders need to adopt a multi-locality approach. This requires new thinking that addresses personal security, safety, and health care needs in places that range from primitive to fully developed. That's why UnitedHealthcare Global offers the most complex mix of business offerings and services to a market that's just beginning to realize what it means to travel safely and securely.

Unless you're into space travel, the opportunity simply couldn't be bigger.

Our business operations span a range of health care insurance, health care facilities and networks, risk management and security services, travel assistance and more. Each of our businesses is complementary to the others and customizable to the market place we serve. Together, we provide the comprehensive solutions in any market place, anywhere.

Talk about opportunity. Can you imagine building a system or software that puts a worldwide organization in touch with all of their travelers with the click of a mouse? Or being part of a team that puts together security updates for hundreds of countries and cities for daily broadcast? Or perfecting a suite of training products that prepare drivers to use evasive maneuvers in remote deserts? The challenges we take on every day create the perfect environment for the passion and energy you bring to every assignment.
